

Rodney Atreopersaud

Assistant Attorney General

Office of the Georgia Attorney General

Rodney Atreopersaud began his legal career in Big Law at Paul Weiss in New York. He met his wife in New York City, and she transformed him from a Yankee to a Southerner.

He moved to Atlanta and briefly worked at Kilpatrick Townsend before beginning his public service career. He worked as a prosecutor for the Fulton County District Attorney's office for over six years, and for the last two and a half years he has been working in the Civil Rights Section of the Office of the Georgia Attorney General. His current practice focuses on civil rights litigation primarily in federal courts.